

Cheers to beer science!

As part of collaborative projects at land-grant universities, scientists have bred new hops that are desirable to consumers and growers, designed a robotic hop twining machine that cuts labor costs, helped brewers detect and kill toxic mold in barley during malting, and showed how regulations and marketing affect beer sales.

Multistate Research Fund
IMPACTS